THE NEW SAT[®]

NO TRICKS. JUST REAL SKILLS.

Want to prove you've got the skills and knowledge colleges want — and the world truly needs? Want to show them you can solve real-world problems? Express ideas clearly? Make complex connections? That's exactly what the new SAT® helps you to do.

The new SAT is a fair and straightforward test. It looks a lot like what you're learning in class, and focuses on what you'll actually use in college.

EVERYDAY WORDS

The new SAT focuses on vocabulary you'll come across often in college classes. They always appear as part of a text passage, so you can put your problem-solving skills to work figuring out what they mean.

ESSENTIAL MATH

The new SAT only tests essential areas of math, like data analysis and algebra. It's the math you'll need no matter what major or career you choose.

REAL-WORLD CONTEXT

The new SAT asks you to interpret, synthesize, and use evidence in real-world sources from history, social sciences, and science. You'll apply your reading, writing, and math skills to solve problems you won't just find in college, but in everyday life.

OPTIONAL ESSAY

The new SAT Essay is optional. It's a great way to show off your writing skills on an assignment similar to what you'll get in your first year of college. You'll read a passage and explain how the author builds an argument to persuade an audience.

STRAIGHTFORWARD SCORING

The new SAT has no guessing penalty, encouraging students who have worked hard to try their best on every question.

SKILLS AREN'T BOUGHT. THEY'RE LEARNED.
