Transition Student services

Training? Post-secondary Education? Job? Not sure what's next?

Let us help you! Centers for Independent Living (CILs) provide resources, information, and support to students with disabilities who are trying to decide what's next for them after high school. Sometimes you just need someone to explain your options or help you when you are stuck. CILs provide services to youth and young adults with disabilities to help them transition from high school to post-secondary education, employment, and independent living.
