

Hailey

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

You have to go answer questions about the USA. Sometimes you have to go in a room with 3 officers that would make you feel nervous because theres 3 officers. It would also be stressed and worried you would make it threw.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

There similar because you have to answer questions about America. Also there officers giving you questions. They're differant but in Ellis Island you go in a big room with many people and one officers per person. Angel Island you go in a room by your self with 3 officers.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Alvin

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

A typical day for an immigrant would be very stressful!

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

Both determine if someone can come into the United States. Angel Island is small and Ellis Island is big.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Kaylee

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

A typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to ~~through~~ Angle Island would probably you would feel scared and you would probably meet a lot of people because its one by one. A typical day in Ellis Island would probably feel more safe but with an unknown officer and would probably just be hopeful ^{that they pass the questions}

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

They are both similar because they are both an immigration port. Also they have officers. Also because they are asking them questions. They are different because in Ellis Island you wait and a ton of people and in Angle Island they wait by themselves with 3 officer with in Ellis Island you talk to one.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Michael

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

A typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America is feeling stressed, and scared. There going to have a difficult and busy day. They are going to be frightened.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

immigrants They are similar because they have officers asking them questions. Their different because one of the pictures has a crowded area. Angel island is a small area and their taking one person at a time.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Monica

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

The immigrants may be be scare and more in the picture Angel Island cause they are only with one person I think they are stressed and afraid and more scare that they are going to bring you back to your country and be tryer

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

they are similar cause they both have people and they are different cause the angel island has one person in a room and in ellis island there are a lot of people in the room

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

There are a lot of people trying to get through the ports. Ellis Island, it looks like some of the people are asking questions. The immigrants might have to take a citizenship test.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

There are a lot more people in Ellis Island. They are alike because it seems that they are all being asked questions. They are both being observed.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

In Ellis Island, their day would be horrible because if they get a question wrong they will get sent to prison.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

It would be similar with these two cruel islands by if you don't get just one question on their citizen test they will be beaten. Ellis Island is not really better but Angel Island are much more cruel than Ellis Island.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Meilyn

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

A typical day for an immigrant is distressing because when ^{the} people that are asking questions ask them about what they know about America they don't know.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

In Ellis Island and Angel Island, there are officers to ask questions about what they now about the United States. In Ellis Island there two people asking questions and in Angel Island there are three people asking questions to one person.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Amber

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

There would be Police man asking you many questions about the U.S.A to see if you and other people can get in

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

One as more people at the first one and the second one as only one person. And number too is that both half police man.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Ty

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

They would be tired and would look messy and there would be thousands of people trying. there would be many police men and would be asking you many

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

they are similar cause there is other people trying to be free and be treated fair, and different cause more people at one than the other one

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

I think immigrants want to come to America because it very stressful day and they would have to go to Ellis Island and they would not know how to respond to the person who is interviewing them and would be very scared

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

Ellis Island and Angel Island are similar because both would have interviewers and there would be a person that they have to interview. They are different because in Ellis Island there is only 1 person per immigrant to interview and in Angel Island there are 3 people interviewing 1 person

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

The picture with both island they day would be like a stressful day because they have to answer and the office would ask you stuff about America.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

The picture of Ellis Island is similar to Angel Island because they both have officers questioning them and seeing what they know about America. They are different because Ellis Island they are asking you question in a big room and in Angel Island they pull you aside to ask you the questions.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Jade

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

A typical day would be an unknown officer asking you questions on what you know about America. These people will most likely be worried or stressed out on what lies ahead.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

Angel Island and Ellis Island are alike because they are both deciding which immigrants will move on to America. They are different because in Angel Island it looks like the immigrants are a little more worried because it is just them surrounded by 3 officers but in Ellis Island they are 1 on 1.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Maria

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

I think its gonna be busy and hard because people want to come to America and it would be scary for some people.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

Because there's a lot of Officers. They were different because there a big room full of people in Ellis Island and you feel more safe. And in Angel Island your terrified and lonely with officers.

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

In Ellis Island when you try to gain access to America you will be in a big room with other immigrants and you sit down and a officer asks you questions they are similar because someone is asking you questions. they are different because in Ellis Island one officer asks you questions and in Angel Island there are 3 officers in a small room asking one person at a time so the officers can ask you questions.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

Andre

1. Examine the pictures. Describe a typical day for an immigrant trying to gain access to America through one of the United States immigration ports?

you would have to wait in a long line you would have to try to stick with your family & stressed out & constant questions.

2. Based on the images, how is the interview process of these two ports similar? How are they different?

They both have workers also constant immigrant going to ports also a bunch of questions & families would be broken a part

3. Imagine that you are the person conducting the interview... You must ask each immigrant questions to determine if they should be allowed into the United States. It is your responsibility to ensure that people entering the country will not become a burden on the nation. What two questions could you ask to ensure that this person is worthy of becoming an American citizen?

Template is attached

1. What do you seek in America
2. Do you have any criminal activity in your old country